CASE STUDIES

When her husband died on active service in the Royal Navy, Rosemary Anderson was left to cope on a war widow's pension. She was put in touch with the Sailors' Families' Society and she joined their Family Support Scheme. She now gets a monthly grant for basic essentials, a school clothing grant for her children and a Christmas grant. Mrs Anderson also benefited from a free week's caravan holiday in the UK – which gave her family a much needed break.

Robert Benson retired after twenty years as a fisherman and found he could not meet his modest living expenses on a basic state pension. He was put in touch with the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society and was eligible for their regular grants scheme. When he told them about his deteriorating health, which included heart problems and breathing difficulties, the charity paid for a reclining bed to help him sleep.

Who is SeafarerSupport for?

Working and former seafarers (Royal Navy, Royal Marines, Merchant Navy and fishermen) and their families as well as people who work to improve the lives of seafarers and their families.

How can seafaring charities help?

Sometimes we need a little help in steering a course through life's problems. SeafarerSupport will guide you and your family to some of the services available. This might include advice, or finding financial support, depending upon your circumstances.

What happens when I contact SeafarerSupport?

- We aim to respond to all enquiries within three working days
- Our friendly staff will ask you a few questions about the help you are looking for
- We will work with you to see if there are suitable sources of help from seafaring charities, or elsewhere, to meet your needs
- If required we can arrange for a trained caseworker to visit in your home

Using the Online Maritime Charities Welfare Guide:

- If you know the words/phrases relating to a charity use the 'Key Words' search option
- The 'Quick Search' option allows you to search using basic information
- Use the 'Advanced Search' to find the maritime charity best placed to assist you, or, the person you represent. Some personal information will be required if you want to initiate a call back from Seafarer Support staff

These are some of the ways in which seafaring or other charities might be able to help:

Advice

We will put you in touch with an organisation that can advise on:

- Debt and money management
- Entitlement to state benefits
- Bringing up young families
- Residential or nursing care, sheltered and independent housing in a number of locations in the UK

Financial help

- Grants to help with everyday essentials such as furniture, cookers, washing machines etc
- Regular grants for those whose income and savings are below certain levels
- Grants towards the costs of raising children for those who have lost a parent or are experiencing hardship. These can include day-to-day needs, disabilities, educational costs, or seaside holidays

Health

- Help with the costs of disability aids and home adaptations
- Access to priority treatment for working and retired UK merchant seafarers and fishermen

Career development

- Grants and interest free loans for Merchant Navy career development

Please note that, as a referral service, we do not provide direct financial assistance ourselves. Whilst we make every effort to find help there may be circumstances in which that is not possible but we will, in any event, advise you of the outcome.
