

Adult Protection Policy

Introduction

1. KEY PRINCIPLES

Every adult has a right to be protected from all forms of abuse, neglect and exploitation.

Adults must make their own decisions and supported to make their own decisions. Every attempt should be made to ensure that an adult is able to express their own wishes and make their own decisions. On occasion this self-determination may involve risk.

Where an adult is a serious risk to themselves or others, it may be necessary to override the wishes of the adult or make decisions on his/her behalf for their own safety (or the safety of others) this should be proportionate and be the least disruptive response to the identified risks to health, welfare, property or finances of the adult consistent with the current legislative framework

The welfare and safety of the adult takes priority over any enquiry or investigation.

2. BACKGROUND INFORMATION ON ABUSE OR HARM THAT MIGHT AFFECT ADULTS

Adults can be at risk of harm from a variety of factors. Adult ESOL learners may be at greater risk of harm due to not having language skills or knowledge of life in Scotland, or because of additional social factors, such as poverty, immigration, human trafficking. Adults may be scarred by previous, or current, trauma and abuse.

The Adult Support and Protection \(Scotland\) Act 2007 was introduced to protect adults from risk of harm. 'Adults at risk' are defined as, adults who

- are unable to safeguard their own wellbeing, property, rights or other interests
- are risk of harm and
- because they are affected by disability, mental disorder, illness or other physical or mental infirmity are more vulnerable than adults not so affected

Adults can also be at risk if

- another person's conduct is causing (or likely to cause) the adult to be harmed, or

- the adult is engaging (or is likely to engage) in conduct which causes (or is likely to cause) self-harm

Categories of Abuse

Physical abuse: can include hitting, shaking, punching, pulling hair etc, locking them in a room or limiting their freedom

Emotional/psychological: can include being made to feel scared or embarrassed, being intimidated or bullied, constantly criticised, not being allowed to see or talk freely to other people

Neglect: can include not being given the correct medication or care, not allowed to see a doctor or other health professional, not allowed enough food or have proper heating, lack of privacy and dignity

Financial: can include stealing, fraud, forcing to hand over money or goods, misuse of property or benefits or stopping someone getting their own money or possessions

Sexual abuse: can include any sexual activity that the person does not understand or want; degrading or inappropriate photographs

Discriminatory Harm: Mistreatment, harassment or behaving differently towards someone due to their gender, sexual orientation, race, disability, age, colour, language, religion or belief or politics

Sources of harm

An adult may be at risk of abuse, harm or exploitation by:

- family member(s) -immediate or extended
- other adults or children know to them
- employers
- professionals or
- by a stranger

Signs of abuse

There are a number of ways to spot if an adult is at risk of or abuse or neglect. Some of these include:

- The adult themselves may advise they are being harmed or they may make a comment which leads you to suspect they are being abused or neglected
- unusual, unexplained or suspicious injury
- unexplained loss of weight or increased confusion
- the adult may appear frightened of a particular person
- unable to spend time alone with the adult due to the insistence or presence of another

- Unexplained debts or reduction in assets may be indicators of financial abuse

Many people worry about this aspect of challenging aspect of working with vulnerable people. Hearing about abuse or harm can be very hard for the listener. On hearing a disclosure of abuse or having a concern, we should always aim to ensure that our feelings, thoughts and actions are kept in balance. During and after following the adult protection procedures, staff or volunteers should seek support, through their line manager.

In the event, that an adult discloses abuse or harm, be familiar with this good practice (appendix 2).

APPENDIX 2 - GOOD PRACTICE

ADULT PROTECTION - Disclosures of harm or abuse

Do not attempt to investigate – investigation of abuse is the responsibility of the police and/or social work departments.

Don't promise confidentiality– any concerns must be passed on immediately to your manager. Be clear that we cannot maintain confidentiality if the adult is at risk to themselves or to others.

Maintain confidentiality within guidelines - Do not discuss the situation with other volunteers or staff members, unless they are directly involved in disclosure. Any discussion should be only held for establishing facts and any action to be taken. Use the support of development workers and managers.

Listen and only ask open questions – Listen carefully and be fully attentive to the adult during their disclosure or allegation of abuse. Avoid asking leading questions and keep your questions to a minimum. Open questions ensure that we don't guide what the adult is disclosing.

Don't make value judgements – No matter what the issue is the adult disclosing harm or abuse may have loyalties to the person that may be causing this. Avoid showing any personal judgements on this and stick to facts.

Reassure – It may be have taken a lot of courage to talk to someone. Let the adult know they have done the right thing and that you will help them to get the support they need.

Describe the next step - Unless an adult is in immediate danger, you need to get full consent from the adult to pass any concerns on to other organisations. Let them know that you want to support them and the you need to talk to the development worker and/or manager, who will help them decide what they want to do next.

Speak to the person in the organisation who has responsibility for adult protection – remember that this is the person who has the responsibility for ensuring that disclosure or concerns about abuse are effectively handled.

Write down what you have been told – try to write exactly what the adult said to you and the phrases he or she used. This should be written on an adult protection concern form and passed on to a development worker/manager and stored confidentially.

Ask for support for yourself – handling a disclosure of abuse can leave you feeling overwhelmed and vulnerable. Speak to your line manager or development worker.
