Insane Competition

No Centralized Database

At Swarthmore this year, our admit rate for regular decision for international students seeking financial aid was less than 1%. Many of the 99% other students were insanely qualified. Early Decision gets you into the 5-10% admit range, so I always recommend Early for students like yours (if they really want to go to one school, of course). Otherwise, Regular is nearly impossible with even perfect stats, resumes, essays, etc. (I've also seen students who apply Regular, are denied, apply Early and are admitted - and now they're at Swat.)

Texas University decision spikes Nepali students' dreams

Tyler revokes 50 out of 84 scholarships

BINOD CHIMIRE

KATHMANDU, MAY 1

The University of Texas at Tyler's decision to revoke 50 out of 84 bachelor's degree full scholarships has spiked dreams, time, deposit money, and, arguably a full academic year of Nepali students, preparing to travel to the United States to start their semester in August.

The students, many had taken a gap year after graduating from school to apply to colleges in the United States, feel 'cheated' by Tyler's strange decision of granting full scholarships to 84 Nepalis and then revoking.

Chitwan-based Roman Shrestha, one of the many

• Roman Shrestha

the grant was not available as requests for the scholarship exceeded the amount budgeted for the year.

"We initially thought we could include you as a fellow this year, but the popularity of the program was far greater than expected," reads the letter obtained by

• Shreeya Adhikari

However, the amount is $16,000 less than they committed earlier.

Many students said they want the university to continue the original offer since they are not in a position to pay the additional $16,000 per annum.

I understand making a top school is hard especially for internationals. Admissions officers painstakingly select the suitable applicants each year and although I know their standards are high and their selection process standard are commendable, I have been taken aback by the fact that one of my top students this year was rejected from almost all the schools he applied to.
