Guidance in relation to the required declaration of shares, gifts & hospitality and land

- 1. The Code refers to the nominal value of securities. What is this – is it different to market value of securities?

The nominal value of securities is the face value of those securities (e.g. the value recorded on a share certificate. For example, you bought 10,000 x £1.50 shares (face value in 1999). The market value at the time was £3 each so the total paid was £30,000. Those shares are now worth £45,000. You are required to declare the nominal value of shares held in excess of £25,000. The nominal value of those shares would be £15,000 (10,000 x £1.50).

Therefore you would not be obliged to enter the shares even though the current market value of the shares is £45,000. This would be the case unless the number of shares you hold represents more than one hundredth of the total issued share capital of the relevant corporate body.

- 2. Do I need to register all gifts and hospitality I receive?

No. you only need to register gifts and hospitality that you receive in connection with your official duties as a Member. Gifts received in a personal capacity do not fall within those circumstances, so do not need to be registered.

- 3. Do I need to register land that I own overseas or in parts of England outside the Council's area?

No. You only need to register land you own in which you have beneficial interest that is within the Parish Council's area.
