

Case Study

Gocompare.com decided to undertake a market review of software solutions which could assist with the management of its supply chain. Following the review Gocompare.com awarded the business to Atamis and the Atamis 3.0 solution.

Gocompare.com was seeking a software solution which could provide a centralised view of its supply chain to assist the business with the following:

- Supplier management
- Contract management
- Tender management
- Spend analysis

The Atamis solution has been implemented and made available to the procurement function and business owners (25 users in total). Gocompare.com operates a small procurement function and the implementation of Atamis has enabled the procurement team to work with business owners proactively while increasing the control over the procurement and supplier management processes.

The ability to track the progress of tenders was extremely important to the procurement function, and Atamis was able to configure the solution to deliver tender management functionality configured to match Gocompare's process model and workflow structure. Once a tendering process has been awarded, the project converts to an active contract removing unnecessary administration.

To improve the success of the project Atamis has assisted with utilising the software to increase the engagement with business owners, using automated reporting, the ability to automate task generation and designate responsibility for the task, and the introduction of a mobile application.

Business owners now have visibility of suppliers, contracts and monthly spend analysis which allows them to track and monitor supplier expenditure against contracts and identify spend areas for consolidation across the business.

The Procurement Manager from Gocompare, said, "After a careful review of products available in the market place, it was agreed that Atamis 3.0 was the best fit for our business. The solution has been built with input from procurement professionals, and yet retains the flexibility to deliver solutions to expanding problems. The tender management was very much a "like to have", and after describing a high level overview of what I wanted, the team at Atamis were able to configure the solution to meet, and exceed, my expectations which has increased the efficiency and management of tenders and reduced administration time.

"All of the functionality Atamis 3.0 delivers gives us visibility to help us support procurement activity across the business in a far more effective manner."
