

Warrior

Warrior is an extraordinary example of the resilience, strength, and profound contribution that horses made to the Great War

Warrior went to war on the Western Front with Winston Churchill's great friend, General Jack Seely, in 1914. There he survived all imaginable disasters, was active in many famous battles including those at the Somme and Ypres. Returning with Jack Seely to his native Isle of Wight in 1918, he lived on until the grand old age of 33, even winning a point to point four years to the day that he had led the charge at Moreuil Wood.
